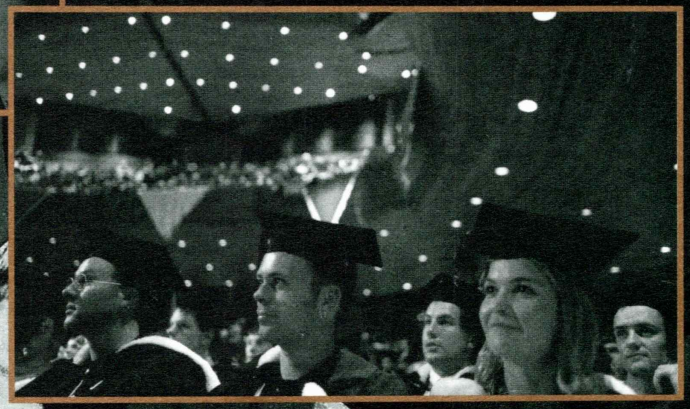
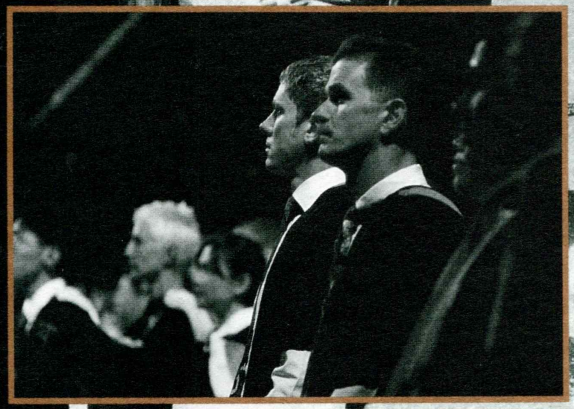
Graduation Ceremonies





GRADUATION 2001 1/2 MAY 2001 MICHAEL FOWLER CENTRE

Introduction from the Vice-Chancellor

To our graduating students

My warmest congratulations to you on attaining your Victoria University qualification. It is time to celebrate the culmination of all those months or years of study, dedication and effort. After all, a Victoria qualification is not won lightly - a century's pursuit of excellence and rigour in academic thinking means that our staff and students alike expect the highest standards.

From now on you become alumni of the University - a group of distinguished and innovative thinkers who, like you, chose to study here. Because you have worked so hard to gain your qualification, it makes sense to stay in touch. Join the Alumni Association and continue to network with other graduates over the coming years as you progress in your chosen careers or other endeavours.

My very best wishes to you and your families as you enter this time of choices and decisions - a task not so onerous for Victoria University graduates, renowned for their critical thinking skills. Whatever options you pursue, I hope that you reflect well on your time here and that you maintain your association with the University over the coming years. And I hope that you will speak with pride of your University, Victoria.

Professor Stuart N McCutcheon

Chancellor

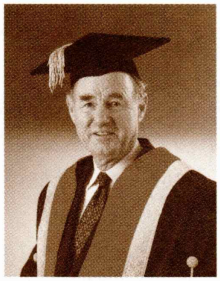
Russell Marshall

Russell Marshall is in his seventh year on the Victoria University Council, as one of the graduate representatives elected through the Court of Convocation. This is his second year as Chancellor. He was Member of Parliament for Wanganui for eighteen years until 1990. As a Minister of the Crown, his portfolios included those of Education and Foreign Affairs. Mr Marshall currently chairs the Education New Zealand Trust, the PINZ international education consultancy and the Cambodia Trust. In December he was appointed chairman of the government's Tertiary Education Advisory Commission. He was made a Companion of the Order of New Zealand in the New Year's Honours list.

Pro-Chancellor

Winifred Jardine

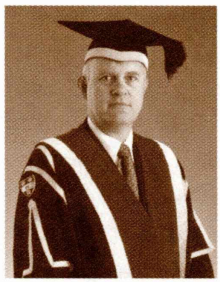
Mrs Jardine was appointed as Pro-Chancellor at the beginninng of last year and is currently a member of various University Committees including the Finance Committee and the Honorary Degrees and Awards Committee. She is also the Convenor of the Review of the Charter Committee. Mrs Jardine is a Barrister and Solicitor of the High Court of New Zealand. She currently works as a Senior Solicitor for the Ministry of Māori Development and is responsible for the provision of legal advice to the Chief Executive of the Ministry of Māori Development and the Minister of Māori Affairs. Formerly in private practice in the corporate law firm Simpson Grierson, Mrs Jardine practised in the areas of commercial and corporate law with a special emphasis on Māori land law and Treaty of Waitangi issues. She holds several directorships.



Pro-Chancellor

Emeritus Professor Tim Beaglehole

Professor Beaglehole was elected to the University Council at the end of 1998 and became Pro-Chancellor a year later. A graduate of Victoria and Cambridge Universities he later spent a year at Harvard as a Harkness Fellow, and taught at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, on a staff exchange. Professor Beaglehole spent his career at Victoria in the History Department and has published on Indian and New Zealand history. He served twice as Dean of Arts (being the first non-professorial Dean), as Deputy Vice-Chancellor and Acting Vice-Chancellor. He was a staff representative on the University Council from 1968 to 1971 and in 1982, and is a life member of the Students' Association. Beyond the University, Professor Beaglehole has been chairperson of the New Zealand Historic Places Trust and deputy chairman of the Council of the National Art Gallery.

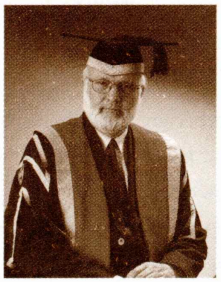


Vice-Chancellor

Professor Stuart N McCutcheon

Professor McCutcheon was born and raised in Wellington. He left the capital in 1973 to study at Massey University. Completing his Bachelor's degree with first class honours in 1976, he was appointed to the lecturing staff of Massey University and studied for the PhD. in metabolic physiology. From 1982 to 1984 he was a postdoctoral fellow at Cornell University, New York, while the recipient of a Harkness Fellowship. He was appointed Head of the Department of Animal Science at Massey University in 1990, Assistant Vice Chancellor (Research) in 1994, and Deputy Vice Chancellor in 1999.

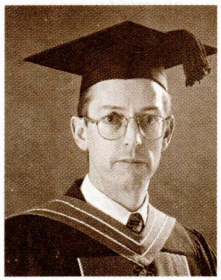
Professor McCutcheon has published extensively in the fields of endocrinology and metabolic physiology, particularly as they apply to the regulation of growth and development in the fetus and newborn. He has served in an advisory capacity to a number of government agencies and industry boards.



Deputy Vice-Chancellor

Professor Roy Sharp

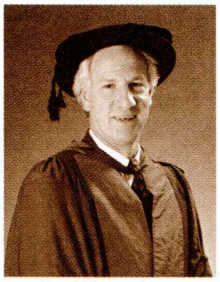
Professor Roy Sharp, who has been Deputy Vice-Chancellor since early 1997, came to Victoria University from the Universtiy of Auckland where he had been a member of the School of Engineering academic staff for 24 years. At the end of that period he was Dean of Engineering and an Assistant Vice-Chancellor. He has MA and DPhil degrees from Oxford University and was a member of the research staff at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the early 1970s before coming to New Zealand. He is a Chartered Engineer and a Fellow of the Institution of Professional Engineers, New Zealand.



Dean of Commerce & Administration

Professor Neil Quigley

Neil Quigley has been Dean of the Faculty of Commerce & Administration since February 1997. He completed a BA and MA with first class honours from the University of Canterbury, and in 1986 received his PhD from the University of Toronto. Dr Quigley returned from an appointment at the University of Western Ontario in May 1995, taking up the position of Professor of Monetary Economics and Financial Institutions at Victoria. As Dean he continues to pursue an active research programme on issues relating to financial markets in New Zealand and Canada, and retains an affiliation as Research Associate at the Institute for Policy Analysis, University of Toronto.



Dean of Humanities & Social Sciences

Professor David Mackay

Professor David Mackay has been Dean of the Faculty since the beginning of 1995. He is responsible for 10 schools and four research institutes which between them contain almost 40 per cent of the students enrolled at Victoria. A Victoria graduate with a BA(Hons) in History, he went on to University College, London, where he completed a PhD in 1970. He returned to Victoria in 1971 to join the Department of History. Professor Mackay was a Nuffield Fellow in the UK in 1976. Since returning to Victoria he has served three periods as Chairperson of the History Department and two as staff representative on Council. Professor Mackay is the author of In The Wake of Cook and A Place of Exile: The European Settlement of New South Wales

Dean of Law

Professor Matthew Palmer

Professor Matthew Palmer has been Dean of Law since January 2001, and has had teaching links with the University since 1987. Prior to Victoria he enjoyed a significant public sector career in public law, Treaty of Waitangi issues, economics and organisational reform in both the Ministry of Justice where he was Deputy Secretary for Justice (Public Law) and The Treasury. He holds a Bachelor of Law (First Class Honours) from Victoria University, a BA from Canterbury in Economics and Political Science, a Master of Law from Yale Law School in Law and Economics, and received a Doctor of Law from Yale Law School with a dissertation on law and economics of constitutional design. He was admitted as a Barrister and Solicitor of the High Court in 1987. Professor Palmer has lectured at the University of Chicago Law School and is a John M Olin Fellow. He has also been awarded a Ford Foundation Fellowship in Public International Law from Yale Law School and is a recipient of the William Georgetti Scholarship.

Dean of Science

Professor Peter Englert

Professor Peter Englert took up his appointment as Dean of Science at Victoria University in May 1998. He holds a Doctor of Science degree from the University of Cologne and worked at that university from 1975 to 1986, when he joined San Jose State University in California. He became a full professor in the Department of Chemistry in 1992. He moved to Wellington in early 1995 to take up a position as senior manager at the Institute of Geological and Nuclear Sciences. His main research interests are in the application of non-invasive analytical techniques to solve scientific and industrial problems as well as the study of radioactivity induced by cosmic rays in terrestrial and extraterrestrial materials. He is participating in the Mars Surveyor 2001 Orbiter of NASA to map the elemental composition of the Mars surface. Professor Englert has extensive experience both in research and in the management of science.

Graduation: an Historical Perspective

Victoria University's graduation ceremony enshrines centuries of tradition, its essential features dating back to the 12th century when the first universities appeared. The words "university" and "degree" are both derived from Latin, the language used by scholars in the Middle Ages. The Latin term universitas meant a guild or union, formed by the "masters" (MAs) who held a licence to teach.

"Degree" and "graduate" come from gradus, meaning step. The first step taken by students was admission to a Bachelor's degree; the second and final step made them Masters too and won them admission to the universitas.

In the old days the new Master had to deliver an inaugural lecture, take the whole universitas of Masters out to dinner, and preside over disputations for 40 days. Graduating Masters at Victoria will be relieved to know that this practice was dispensed with some time ago.

The Chancellor tells the graduating students, "By the authority of the Victoria University of Wellington, I, Russell Marshall, Chancellor, confer and award on the persons whose names are entered on the roll of graduates the degrees, diplomas and certificates there appearing, and they are hereby admitted to these degrees, diplomas and certificates in this University", which is based on the Latin form used in the Middle Ages.

The title of Chancellor was originally that of the Bishop's secretary; the Bishop was the one who had the right to grant licences to teach in his diocese – at a time when the Church held a virtual monopoly on learning – but he tended to depute this job to his Chancellor. Later the Pope assumed the power to grant licences to teach anywhere, not just in specified dioceses, and the Chancellor conferred degrees on his behalf.

During the Reformation in Britain, Henry VIII took over all the powers of the Pope, including that of granting degrees. Consequently the Chancellor's robes are not ecclesiastical, but similar to those worn by the Lord Chancellor of England.

The gowns worn by the graduands and academic staff, however, are fashioned after the dress of the medieval clergy, although those of the Middle Ages were fastened at the front; the fashion for wearing the gowns open at the front resulted from a desire to show off the fine clothes underneath. The hood was also a normal medieval garment, the coloured lining being added a little later. Since the 1600s the colours of the hoods have been strictly controlled, so that a graduate's hood colour denotes his or her university and degree.

The members of the public also have a part to play at the graduation ceremony. They are not just an audience; they are witnesses to official proceedings.

Te Herenga Waka Marae was the first university marae in New Zealand to officially undertake the conferment of degrees

Students at Victoria now have the opportunity to have their degree conferred in a Māori setting. Te Herenga Waka Marae was the first university marae in New Zealand to officially undertake the conferment of degrees, although diplomas had been awarded at the Marae ceremony before. Te Hui Whakapūmau provides a new and exciting dimension to the University graduation celebrations. The ceremony, which takes place each December, begins with the formal welcome of the graduating students, their whanau and other guests on to Te Herenga Waka Marae. This is followed by the graduation ceremony which is characterised by spontaneous audience participation in the form of haka and waiata after each student is called forward.

Ceremonial Robes

When pompadour stands for Law

The colours of the graduates' hoods or stoles – ranging from nasturtium to pompadour and peacock green – denote the degree achieved, and are special to Victoria.

The official academic dress for graduands attending a graduation ceremony for the conferment of a degree is a gown, hood or stole and cap. The cap has been defined as a black trencher with a tassel for every degree except Doctors' degrees. Doctorates wear a John Knox cap.

Those attending to receive a diploma wear a gown, but not the hood and cap. However, if they already hold a degree they wear the garments appropriate for that degree. Students may, if they wish, embellish their graduation regalia with garments of honour from their cultural traditions.

Graduands attending the graduation ceremony will process into the auditorium carrying their caps, and will put them on when the Chancellor confers their degrees.

Victoria's gowns are modelled on those used at Cambridge University. The gown for Bachelors' degrees is the same as for the Cambridge Bachelor of Arts, and those for Masters and Doctors of Philosophy are the same as for a Cambridge Master of Arts. The gown for other Doctors' degrees is as for the Cambridge Master of Arts but is made of scarlet silk or cloth.

The hood for every degree is the same as for the Cambridge Master of Arts. The hood for a Bachelor's degree is lined with coloured silk and bordered with white fur, while the hood for a Bachelor's degree with honours is lined with coloured silk and edged with white silk, and a Master's hood or stole omits the fur. The stole for a Doctor of Philosophy degree is lined with red silk, and the hood for other Doctors' degrees is made wholly of silk.

Darrell James Collins

Admitted to the degree of Doctor of Philosophy (in Psychology)

Stimulus Salience and Contingency Judgment: An application of the Rescorla-Wagner Model.

Darrell Collins' research investigated how people determine whether one event or cue (such as the presence of a symptom) is related to another event or outcome (such as having a particular disease). Previous research has suggested that this type of contingency judgement may be explained in terms of a relatively simple associative process described in the animal learning literature as the Rescorla-Wagner Model. Darrell carried out a series of experiments to test the adequacy of the model (qualitatively and quantitatively) in accounting for both the acquisition of contingency judgements over time and variations in this learning function when the salience of the cue was varied. The results of these studies indicated that the Rescorla-Wagner model was able to predict the direction of effects observed over time and as a function of cue salience but provided a poor quantitative model of the phenomena. Darrell then presented an alternative quantification of the associative process.

Darrell's research makes a timely and significant contribution to our understanding of the processes underlying human judgements.

Lindsay John Groves

Admitted to the degree of Doctor of Philosophy (in Computer Science)

Lindsay Groves is a long standing member of the lecturing staff at Victoria University. His Ph.D. thesis is a study of how the refinement calculus, a mathematical formulatization of computer programming, can be used to support evolutionary software development. Previous work on program refinement concentrates on it's rigorous, top-down application programes whose specifications are fixed and well understood. Lindsay Groves has extended the theory and techniques of the refinement calculus to apply the same mathematically precise formalism where specifications or high-level designs are changing, and allows new functionality to be incorporated at a late stage in the implementation process. His techniques also provide a logical basis supporting incremental or iterative enhancement of programs and exploratory programming, where initial specifications are not necessarily well defined.

Chaohong Shen

Admitted to the degree of Doctor of Philosophy (in Chemistry)

Electrophilic Metal Complexes

Natural hydrocarbons, like petroleum and natural gas, are the major feedstock of the chemical industry. Although there are well-established industrial procedures for converting methane and petroleum into more useful chemicals, chemists have long sought more specific, more efficient and more environmentally benign ways of converting crude hydrocarbons. Chaohong Shen's PhD studies were directed towards the synthesis of a new class of metal catalyst based on palladium and platinum, and capable of activating the carbon-hydrogen bonds in hydrocarbons. He employed modern chemical design principles to create an environment about the active metal centre which promoted the desired reactivity and at the same time imparted stability to the catalyst. He tested a large number of novel metal complexes and found a small group with the correct balance of features, and he was able to demonstrate their ability to transform methane and other hydrocarbons into oxygenated derivatives.

Joy Margery Anderton

Admitted to the degree of Doctor of Philosophy (in Social Work)

Towards an Ecofeminist Praxis within Social Work Pedagogy

Joy Anderton's thesis makes an important contribution to the debate around knowledge and practice, in applying ecofeminist principles to social work education. The thesis explores the history, development and key themes of ecofeminism, which link social justice and environmental sustainability. Students from both Victoria University and from the University of Lincolnshire & Humberside participated in the action research. The ecofeminist praxis developed makes a significant contribution to social work by challenging it to include the environment as a focus of concern as well as a source of knowledge. An application of the teaching model developed has relevance beyond social work education within the university to education in other fields and at a community level.

Entertainment and Musical Interludes

Te Tangi Puu and Karanga

The Opening Call

The opening moments of the graduation ceremony give us time to pause and reflect. The sound of the rangorango (bullroarer) gives reference to those who have gone before us and influenced us. The call of the pukaea (wooden trumpet) and Karanga (given by a woman of standing within the University community) ceremonially call forth the graduands.

Before the conception of the world, the conception of life,
there is nothing … and from nothing developed darkness.
Only in the womb of darkness can be heard the faint creaking and waning of sound.
Sound is the recognition that there is movement!
Movement is the recognition that there is life!

Haka Powhiri

Performed by Te Kapa Haka o Te Herenga Waka

This is a series of haka to welcome Victoria's graduands.

The haka end when all graduands have entered the auditorium.

The Victoria University of Wellington Orchestra

Leader: Tammie Wang
Conducted by: Peter Walls

The Victoria University of Wellington Orchestra has gained a reputation as one of the finest chamber orchestras in New Zealand. It offers an excellent opportunity for New Zealand's future performers to gain orchestral experience. The school is proud that it has a full range of instruments to support a 60 to 70 piece orchestra. The standard is such that they can regularly perform the works of Sibelius, Stravinsky, Brahms, Mahler, Tchaikovsky and Beethoven, to name but a few, at a level that is second to no other institution in the country. The University Orchestra receives frequent invitations to perform outside Wellington and has also featured on a number of CDs of New Zealand music.

Peter Walls is Professor of Music at Victoria University. He has published widely on music of the 17th and 18th centuries and is known as a specialist performer in this area. As a conductor, he has a particular interest in opera. He has conducted numerous first performances of works by New Zealand composers and in 1998 was awarded a citation and grant by the Lilburn Trust in recognition of his outstanding contributions to New Zealand music. He is Deputy Chairman of the New Zealand Symphony Orchestra.

God Defend New Zealand

God of Nations at Thy feet
In the bonds of love we meet;
Hear our voices we entreat;
God defend our free land.
Guard Pacific's triple star,
From the shafts of strife and war;
Make her praises heard afar,
God defend New Zealand.

E Ihowa, Atua
O Nga Iwi O te Ao
Ata whakarongona;
Me aroha noa.
Kia hua ko te pai;
Kia tau to atawhai;
Manaakitia mai
Aotearoa.

Gaudeamus	Translation
Gaudeamus igitur Juvenes dum sumus; Gaudeamus igitur Juvenes dum sumus. Post jucundam juventutem, Post molestam senectutem, Nos habebit humus, Nos habebit humus.	Let us be joyful therefore While we are young; After youth that brings joy, After old age that brings grief, The grave will take us.
Vivat Academia, Vivant professores; Vivat Academia, Vivant professores. Vivat membrum quodlibet, Vivant membra quaelibet, Semper sint in flore, Semper sint in flore.	Long live the University, Long live the professors, Long live every member, Long live every part, May they ever flourish.
